Excerpt: . Dress Hats are frequently made on Paris foundation net. The rule for making and covering the fronts of bonnet-shapes in general, will here apply in each detail, --although the form of the crown, as well as the covering, will require some further explanation. Crowns suitable to Dress-hats usually incline to the form of a dome; and these, as far as relates to the frame, are made indifferently of leno or stiff muslin. A strip of either will answer the purpose, and must be cut three nails and a-half in depth, and five-eighths in length. One edge of the strip must be plaited up to the size of about a crown-piece, -- having previously joined the strip so as to form a circle. The plaited part will now require to have a flat piece inserted at the top, -- and the lower part must be...
