Chelsea, Olivia, and Lucy are in big trouble. They've failed yet another test in history, and their teacher tells them that if they fail the next exam, which is on Napoleon Bonaparte, they'll have to go to summer school. If only studying and learning weren't so boring! In order to save their summers, they ask Chelsea's grandfather, who is a scientist, to build them a time machine so that they can meet Napoleon Bonaparte in person and really get the answers they need to pass the test. He does just that, and the girls go back to the year 1803, where they meet the famous French General and learn all about his life. When it's time to leave, however, he decides to join them and visit the future-and that's when things begin to go wrong. If the three girls don't act quickly, the world they know may be altered forever. In this work of science fiction for middle readers, Chelsea, Olivia, and Lucy go on a time travel adventure-first to save their summers and then to save history.
